Bus-Video-Tour

The first part of the tour takes place on the former Nazi Party Rally Grounds, where the National Socialists held their elaborate annual propaganda spectacle. The tour provides an account of the use of architecture as a theatrical backdrop to the various events, explains the function of the rallies themselves and the way in which Nuremberg has dealt with its National Socialist legacy. The bus then takes the visitor to the Palace of Justice. After the Second World War, leading political and military figures stood trial here before the International Military Tribunal, accused of committing crimes on an unprecedented scale. Numerous historic film clips will be shown during the tour.
